CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY

1. The procedure you have outlined in reference dispatch is altogether satisfactory and we will arrange to get Home Office copies of the trial transcript either from C's department or from other sources.

2. For information, Trachenko himself is very conscientiously engaged in obtaining all possible publicity for his book as a result of the trial. He is receiving substantial assistance in his efforts from other quarters and it may be expected that he will be able to conduct the situation fully from an overt standpoint. It may become possible for us in the future to contribute to further exploitation by arranging for covert distribution of his book together with a digest of the points brought out at the trial.

3. We shall continue to keep an eye on his efforts from this end.
